

First of all, K-Love has been a rock for my family and I in times of need. It isn't just a radio station but rather a family. I know that I am not alone in this cruel world when I hear other Christians talking and singing praises to God. To impose such rules on any of the Christian radio stations would surely cause many to close their doors forever. If that happens then where will the lost find refuge and where will people go to communicate their fears and such. The Government hasn't got the right to take away our rights. I find it appalling that there are so many stations that play vulgar songs about sex and violence and I don't see nor hear the government trying to control them. But you all will step on the little people who are doing no wrong what so ever. I should hope that you all reconsider these rules, unless you plan to put them in place for every single radio station in the United States of America. I urge you to rethink what you are doing and truly ask yourself why you are doing this.
